About The NCS™

The National Community Survey™ (The NCS™) report is about the “livability” of Marshalltown. The phrase “livable community” is used here to evoke a place that is not simply habitable, but that is desirable. It is not only where people do live, but where they want to live.

Great communities are partnerships of the government, private sector, community-based organizations and residents, all geographically connected. The NCS captures residents’ opinions considering ten central facets of a community:

- Economy
- Mobility
- Community Design
- Utilities
- Safety
- Natural Environment
- Parks and Recreation
- Health and Wellness
- Education, Arts and Culture
- Inclusivity and Engagement

The Community Livability Report provides the opinions of a representative sample of 522 residents of the City of Marshalltown collected from September 28th, 2020 to November 13th, 2020. The margin of error around any reported percentage is 5% for all respondents and the response rate for the 2020 survey was 18%. Survey results were weighted so that the demographic profile of respondents was representative of the demographic profile of adults in Marshalltown.

How the results are reported

For the most part, the percentages presented in the following tabs represent the “percent positive.” Most commonly, the percent positive is the combination of the top two most positive response options (i.e., “excellent” and “good,” “very safe” and “somewhat safe,” etc.). On many of the questions in the survey respondents may answer “don’t know.” The proportion of respondents giving this reply is shown in the full set of responses included in the tab “Complete data.” However, these responses have been removed from the analyses presented in most of the tabs. In other words, the tables and graphs display the responses from respondents who had an opinion about a specific item.

Comparisons to benchmarks

NRC’s database of comparative resident opinion is comprised of resident perspectives gathered in surveys from over 600 communities whose residents evaluated the same kinds of topics on The National Community Survey. The comparison evaluations are from the most recent survey completed in each community in the last five years. NRC adds the latest results quickly upon survey completion, keeping the benchmark data fresh and relevant. The communities in the database represent a wide geographic and population range. In each tab, Marshalltown’s results are noted as being “higher” than the benchmark, “lower” than the benchmark or “similar” to the benchmark, meaning that the average rating given by Marshalltown residents is statistically similar to or different (greater or lesser) than the benchmark. Being rated as “higher” or “lower” than the benchmark means that Marshalltown’s average rating for a particular item was more than 10 points different than the benchmark. If a rating was “much higher” or “much lower,” then Marshalltown’s average rating was more than 20 points different when compared to the benchmark.

Methods

Selecting survey recipients

All households within the City of Marshalltown were eligible to participate in the survey. A list of all households within the zip codes serving Marshalltown was purchased from Go-Dog Direct based on updated listings from the United States Postal Service. Since some of the zip codes that serve the City of Marshalltown households may also serve addresses that lie outside of the community, the exact geographic location of each housing unit was compared to community boundaries using the most current municipal boundary file. Addresses located outside of the City of Marshalltown boundaries were removed from the list of potential households to survey. Each address identified as being within city boundaries was further identified as being within one of the four City Council Wards. From that list, addresses were randomly selected as survey recipients, with multi-family housing units (defined as those with a unit number) sampled at a rate of 5:3 compared to single family housing units.

An individual within each household was selected using the birthday method. The birthday method selects a person within the household by asking the “person whose birthday has most recently passed” to complete the questionnaire. The underlying assumption in this method is that day of birth has no relationship to the way people respond to surveys. This instruction was contained in the cover letter accompanying the questionnaire.

Conducting the survey

The probability sample was divided into two parts: 1,500 recipients received two mailed invitations to participate in the online survey hosted on Polco, while another 1,500 received three mailings. Both parts of the probability sample mailed several days to one week apart and began mailing on September 28th, 2020. The former group received two postcards, a prenotification and a reminder, that contained invitations to complete the survey and a URL through which residents could respond. Conversely, the latter group of 1,500 received a first mailing of a prenotification postcard announcing the survey. The next mailing contained a letter from the Mayor inviting the households to participate, a questionnaire and a postage-paid return envelope. The final mailing contained a reminder letter, another survey and a postage-paid return envelope. The second cover letter asked those who had not completed the survey to do so and those who had already done so to refrain from turning in another survey.

The survey was available in English and Spanish languages. Both cover letters included a URL through which the residents selected for the mail survey could choose to respond online rather than by mail. The cover letters also contained paragraphs in Spanish instructing participants to complete the Spanish version of the survey online.

About 5% of the 3,000 mailed invitations or surveys were returned because the household address was vacant or the postal service was unable to deliver the survey as addressed. Of the remaining 2,848 households that received the invitations to participate, 522 completed the survey, providing an overall response rate of 18%. The response rate(s) were/was calculated using AAPOR’s response rate #2* for mailed surveys of unnamed persons.

It is customary to describe the precision of estimates made from surveys by a “level of confidence” and accompanying “confidence interval” (or margin of error). A traditional level of confidence, and the one used here, is 95%. The 95% confidence interval can be any size and quantifies the sampling error or imprecision of the survey results because some residents’ opinions are relied on to estimate all residents’ opinions. The margin of error for the City of Marshalltown survey is no greater than plus or minus five percentage points around any given percent reported for all respondents.

In addition to the randomly selected “probability sample” of households, a link to an online “open participation” survey was publicized by the City of Marshalltown. This open participation survey was identical to the probability sample survey and open to all city residents. The online “open participation” survey became available to all residents on November 17th, 2020 and remained open for about two weeks.

The data presented in the following tabs exclude the open participation survey data, but a tab at the end provides the complete frequency of responses to questions by the open participation respondents.

Analyzing the data

Responses from mailed surveys were entered into an electronic dataset using a “key and verify” method, where all responses are entered twice and compared to each other. Any discrepancies were resolved in comparison to the original survey form. Range checks as well as other forms of quality control were also performed. Responses from surveys completed on Polco were downloaded and merged with the mailed survey responses.

For both the probability sample and open participation (non-probability) surveys, the demographics of each dataset were separately compared to those found in the 2010 Census and 2017 American Community Survey estimates for adults in the City of Marshalltown. The primary objective of weighting survey data is to make the survey respondents reflective of the larger population of the community. Both survey datasets were weighted independently to best match the Census. The characteristics used for weighting were age, ethnicity, housing type, race, sex, tenure, and ward. No adjustments were made for design effects. Weights were calculated using an iterative, multiplicative raking model known as the ANES Weighting Algorithm.* The results of the weighting scheme are presented in the following table.

The survey datasets were analyzed using all or some of a combination of the Statistical Package for the Social Sciences (SPSS), R, Python and Tableau. For the most part, the percentages presented in the reports represent the “percent positive.” The percent positive is the combination of the top two most positive response options (i.e., “excellent” and “good,” “very safe” and “somewhat safe,” “essential” and “very important,” etc.), or, in the case of resident behaviors/participation, the percent positive represents the proportion of respondents indicating “yes” or participating in an activity at least once a month.

On many of the questions in the survey respondents may answer “don’t know.” The proportion of respondents giving this reply is shown in the full set of responses included in the tab “Complete data”. However, these responses have been removed from the analyses presented in the reports. In other words, the tables and graphs display the responses from respondents who had an opinion about a specific item.

Highlights

Public safety services received high ratings in Marshalltown, but perceptions of safety could be bolstered.

Residents gave very positive ratings to the major public safety services in the city. About 9 in 10 respondents rated fire services as excellent or good and 8 in 10 gave ambulance/ EMS services positive evaluations. Police services were rated as excellent or good by nearly 80% of residents, an impressive score given the national attention around police services and public trust.

While about 90% of residents reported feeling safe in their neighborhood and the city's downtown/commercial area during the day, the overall feeling of safety in Marshalltown was rated excellent or good by only 6 in 10 survey respondents. This rating fell below the national benchmark.

Mobility ratings in the city are positive and above national benchmarks.

About 9 in 10 residents rate the ease of car travel in Marshalltown excellent or good, a score higher than the nation. Traffic flow on major streets and ease of travel by public transportation also received assessments higher than national averages. Ease of pedestrian travel, bicycle travel and parking were all appraised positively by 7 in 10 residents, ratings on par with national benchmarks.

Marshalltown's economy is an area of focus, particularly in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The economic health of Marshalltown was identified as the highest priority for community focus in the coming two years and only about one-third of residents rated the economic health of the city as excellent or good. This quality rating is below the national average. Further, residents gave ratings below the national benchmark to the city as a place to visit, the vibrancy of the downtown, and the variety of business and service establishments. Only 11% of survey respondents rated the shopping opportunities in Marshalltown as excellent or good.

While employment opportunities were rated on par with the nation, the pandemic is impacting jobs and household income. Of the households where at least one adult worked for pay (75% of survey respondents), about 1 in 5 reported job loss was a major or moderate problem due to COVID-19. A similar number reported that reduced income from employment and uncertainty around jobs or income were problematic. About 1 in 4 residents were concerned about missing work due to the virus.

The health risks of COVID-19 are the top concerns of residents in Marshalltown.

Marshalltown residents were asked about a set of common COVID-19 concerns. About 6 in 10 survey respondents were concerned about their health and their families' health and worried about the likelihood of contracting the virus. Lack of mask use and improper social distancing also was concerning to about two-thirds of those completing the survey, with at least half of respondents saying they were very concerned about each of these issues.

The largest concern expressed by residents was the health and safety of vulnerable populations (e.g. older adults and those with chronic health issues). About three-quarters of residents expressed they were very or moderately concerned for these population subgroups during the pandemic.

Facets of livability

Every jurisdiction must balance limited resources while meeting resident needs and striving to optimize community livability. To this end it is helpful to know what aspects of the community are most important to residents and which they perceive as being of higher or lower quality. It is especially helpful to know when a facet of livability is considered of high importance but rated as lower quality, as this should be a top priority to address.

The quadrants to the right show which community facets were given higher or lower importance ratings (up-down) and which had higher or lower quality ratings (right-left). In the charts below you can see what proportion of residents rated each facet positively for quality and then importance. Also shown is whether local ratings were lower, similar or higher than communities across the country (the National Benchmark).

COVID-19

The Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act was passed by Congress to protect the American people from the public health and economic impacts of COVID-19. Through the CARES Act, State, Local, and Tribal governments receive financial assistance to help navigate the impact of the COVID-19 outbreak.

While the standard questions from The National Community Survey provide significant information to evaluate COVID-19 impacts on the foundations of the work environment and climate, these additional questions were included in the survey to dig deeper into the community's recovery needs.

National benchmark tables

Taking the pulse of the community has little meaning without knowing what pulse rate is too high and what is too low. Comparisons to results from other locations across the country can help provide context to the ratings received in Marshalltown.

Ratings are compared when there were at least five other communities in which a similar question was asked. Where comparisons are available, five columns are provided in the table. The first column shows the comparison of Marshalltown's rating to the benchmark. In that column, Marshalltown's results are noted as being "higher" than the benchmark, "lower" than the benchmark or "similar" to the benchmark, meaning that the average rating given by Marshalltown residents is statistically similar to or different (greater or lesser) than the benchmark. The second column is Marshalltown's "percent positive." Most commonly, the percent positive is the combination of the top two most positive response options (i.e., "excellent" and "good," "very safe" and "somewhat safe," etc.). The third column is the rank assigned to Marshalltown's rating among communities where a similar question was asked. The fourth column is the number of communities that asked a similar question. And finally, the fifth column shows the percentile for Marshalltown's result -- that is what percent of surveyed communities had a lower rating than Marshalltown.

Complete set of frequencies

This dashboard contains a complete set of responses to each question on the survey. By default, "Don't know" responses are excluded, but may be added to the table using the response filter to the right. When a table for a question that only permitted a single response does not total to exactly 100%, it is due to the common practice of percentages being rounded to the nearest whole number.
